If I let Freddie cut lose White will pick him off with ease. The other night at Douglas I ease. The other night at Douglas I had great difficulty in holding Freddie from tearing into Chambers. The Douglas fighter outweighed Freddie about 12 pounds, but that didn't mean anything to Freddie and he insisted on boring in. I finally got him checked and he boxed Chambers to a

We have everything to win and nothing to lose except a fight. I am going to send Freddie in to win and we will not start with the intention of putting White to sleep in the first round. I have watched White in numerous bouts and know just how good he is. As for Hill, I can say he has the makings of a real fighter. He won his first 19 fights via the kayo route and the boy was yet in his teems. Today he is slightly over 21 years of age and has won more battles than most fighters at 26 or 27. He has a terrific wallop that makes him respected by lightweights all over the country. Why, even welters steer shy of Freddie's right.

"As a gym worker I can't say much for the hoy as Freddie is more of a fighter than a boxer. He has a natural tendency to bore in all the time hand when he is holding in work over he looks bad. Put Hill in the ring Trad tell bim to cut loose and he makes the best of them back up Yes, he can box and do a nice job, but he craves action. As I said before, if I can keep Freddie from tearing into White, I am confident he will beat the Chicago boy. There is a time for boxing and a time for ripping at your opponent with all the fighting ability you possess. That is where I hope to do the thinking and guide Freddie through this fight. I am not going to promise that he will stand toe to toe with White in the first round and exchange blows, though I am positive Freddie can outsing White. The point is to go in cautiously, feel White out and when the right moment comes then Freddie will open up his battery of "The first time Freddle fought in El Paso he drew $1,600 and lost the fight with an injured hand; the next time he fought in El Paso he packed the arena. So you see the fans like Freddie's style of fighting. Jim Er-win says he would like to put Hill in every bout if he could find the opponents. Tommy Carter was the El Paso favorite until Hill appeared on the scene and now Freddie draws the crowds to Erwin's arena."

Hill will work out at the Eighth street arena at 4 o'clock this after-noon and Charlie White will take the stead of 3 p.m., as previously announced. This will start the main event after 4 o'clock and give all the arena tomorrow afternoon.

when the right moment comes then Freddie will open up his battery of wallops that not even Charlie White can offset If we can get White to do some of the leading it will be easy. The trouble with most of Whites opponents is that they do the leading and White just stands there and picks them off.

"I saw Alger and White fight at El Paso and that is just where Billy failed. He thought he could bore into White and stop him early in the fight. Nothing doing there though: White has been in the game too long to let any fighter rush him off his feet in the opening rounds.
